Williby Jordan named his daughter Nancy in his will, written January 20, 1796. His will follows:

"In the name of God, Amen, I, Williby Jordan of the County of York in the Parish of York-Hampton, being sick in body, but of perfect sense and memory do make and ordain this my last will and testament in manner and form following, that is to say, after my just debts and funeral charges are paid.

Item, I give and bequeath unto my loving wife Mary Jordan during her natural life or widowhood all my estate both real and personal, and at her marriage or death then my will and desire is that my daughter Ann Jordan should have the whole of it, she and her heirs forever; and in case my said daughter Ann Jordan should die before she comes to lawful age, further my will is that one half of my whole estate should be given to my brother Travesse Jordan, to him and his heirs forever and the other half I give to be equally divided betwixt my wife's brothers and sisters, namely John, Stephen, Richard, Frances and Elizabeth Hogg and their heirs forever.

And I do hereby appoint my loving wife, Mary Jordan exetor (sic) to this my last will and testament. In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal the 20th day of January in the year of our Lord 1796. Signed, sealed and delivered

The probaton of this will October 17, 1796 proves the death date of Williby Jordan. John Hogg Jr. was appointed guardian of the orphan, Nancy Jordan, with John Hogg Sr. as his security.

Mary Hogg³ Jordan, daughter of Richard Hogg² Jr. and his wife, Frances, and widow of Williby Jordan died before 1800 when her mother made her will.⁽²⁾ A bequest of $30 was made to "my grand-daughter, Ann Jordan" by Frances Hogg. Between 1938 (when research for this family study was begun) and October, 1942, much of the data for this family group was collected through a friendly association. Mrs. Molly Richardson a member of this branch of the family became partly blind. Her impaired vision made letter writing impossible. She had a daughter who lived out of state, to whom she used to write, until her blindness forced her to seek assistance with her mail. Mrs. Richardson turned to me in her dilemma and I was grateful that I could render her this service. At first she would come to my home and bring her letters to be answered. She would talk to me and I would write. Then as I read to her what I had written, having gathered the news from her conversation, she would be so pleased with the letters we had thus prepared! As time went by and her blindness increased, she could not come to me; instead she would send me a message and I would go to her home, where again we talked and I wrote. During these many visits we talked about family, ancestors, kinsfolk, her aunts and uncles, her parents, family Bible records. She gave me the rare privilege to copy all the family names and dates listed in her Bible even though she did not usually tell her age. I was her trusted friend, and I was humbled and grateful for her confidence in me, which I never betrayed. The data thus gathered I carefully charted, knowing that it would be incorporated into the Nancy Jordan section of my Hogg manuscript some day (signed E.H.I.)

The many cousin intermarriages produced this close knit family group, and brought about parallel lineal tracings that made for repetition. A choice had to be made: should one consider space and eliminate repetitions; or, should clarity be the first consideration. If priority were given to clarity, then some repetition would serve that end. A final choice included what seemed to be the most necessary repetitions, but some eliminations were thought best so as to keep the manuscript from becoming monotonous.
